TESTIMONIES

It was the first time for me that adults stepped back, listened to our ideas, and told us to make it happen. As a child who does not usually accomplish much at school, the fact that my hard work was appreciated gave me a feeling I cannot describe in words.

- Noopur Kahchane, Alumni

The skills I learned taught me more than how to perform professional tasks, they taught me confidence . . . confidence in myself to be a youth leader in my community and confidence in others to believe in my skills.

- Nadia Jones, Alumni

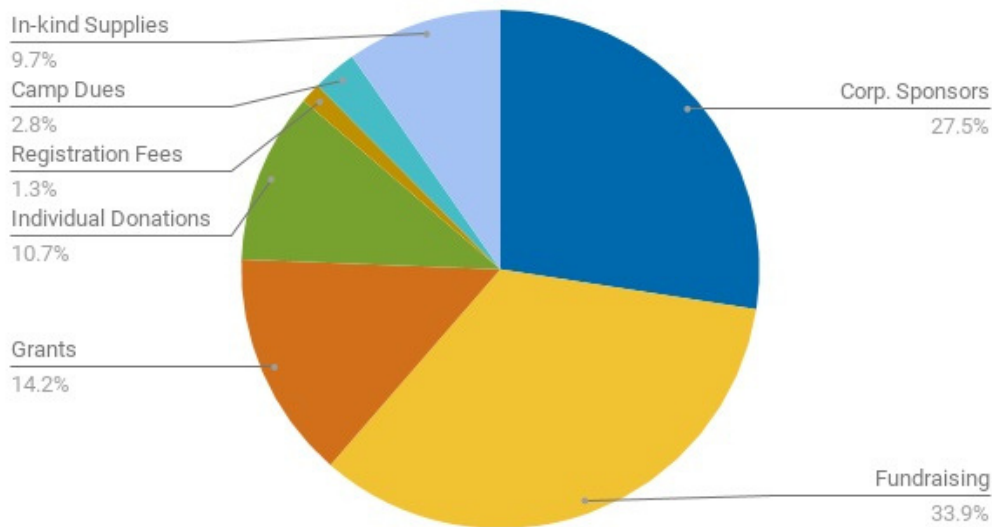

Through my four years working with Hands4Hope, I have learned several things. Above all, I have learned that my actions as a person, student, or volunteer speaks louder than words. I have learned that in order to make a difference, I must first look internally to create change externally.

- Chiemela Ohanele, Alumni
